Construction Leaders Named To School Advisory Board

NewSchool of Architecture and Design announced the appointment of 12 local leaders in the construction management industry to its Construction Management Advisory Board.

NSAD recently launched a Bachelor of Science in construction management degree program, complementing its bachelor's and master's degree programs in architecture.

Members of the NSAD Construction Management Advisory Board include:

Tracy Addis — construction manager, Naval Facilities Engineering Command, Naval Base Point Loma;

Jef Farrell — vice president and o perations manager, Swinerton Builders;

Keith Hsiueh — project architect, GSA;

Derek Hutchison — executive vice president, Cumming Corp.;

Frank Jones — project executive,

DPR Construction;

Diane Keltner — president, Associated General Contractors, San Diego chapter;

Phil Kern — program manager,

Bureau Veritas;

Diane Koester-Dion — president,

I.E.-Pacific Inc.;

Lisa Sachs — managing principal,

Cumming Corp.;

Ron Sutliff — principal, Integrated Project Management LLC;

Frank Young — board member, American Society of Professional Estimators, San Diego chapter four; and Linda Young — treasurer, National Association of Women in Construction Education Foundation.

“We are thrilled to have such significant members of the construction industry associated with NSAD,” said Linda Thomas-Mobley, construction management program chair. “They will provide invaluable advice on trends and developments in the field. Their insight will help us prepare our graduates for successful careers in construction management.”
