San Diego is a bustling community of Southern California, boasting a diverse geography of soaring mountains and miles of coastline. San Diego also has a thriving dining scene, with the county home to more than 6,000 eating establishments. When you're in the city, dine at one of the local restaurants near Laurel Street to be just minutes from the harbor, as well as the famous San Diego Zoo.

For an international feast, visit restaurants along Laurel Street in San Diego.

French Restaurants

Right on Lauren Street, Hexagone (hexagone.thechamberworks.com) provides live jazz events for patrons, as well as a discounted two-course lunch Monday through Thursday. The menu features French favorites with a California twist, with a large variety of seafood dishes, plus classic beef, duck and veal entrees. Choose one of the French wines to complement the meal. Enjoy views of the city and waterfront at Bertrand at Mister A's (bertrandatmisteras.com). This restaurant is half a block from Laurel Street, offering Modern American cuisine with French and Mediterranean influences. The dinner menu features dishes such as lobster strudel, paella and rack of lamb. A small list of meat-free dishes is available for vegetarians.

Italian Dining

Feel like you're eating in a rustic Italian farmhouse at Cucina Urbana (cucinaurbana.com), along Laurel Street. The eatery prides itself on using organic and seasonal produce, with the menu offering traditional entrees as well as family-style dishes. Pasta, pizzas, burgers and steaks are all here, with daily specials served from 5 to 6 p.m. Bring the family: Kids can build their own pizzas or enjoy a small entree with unlimited soda and a scoop of ice cream for dessert.

Asian Cuisine

Azuki Sushi (azukisushi.com) is on Fifth Avenue, brightly decorated and featuring al fresco dining on the patio. Over 20 varieties of sushi and sashimi are on the menu, plus traditional Japanese entrees of tempura, teriyaki and beef dishes. Dine during the happy hour for discounted appetizers and drink specials, or take advantage of the specials, which change nightly. Also on Fifth Avenue, Mandarin House (mandarinhousesandiego.com) serves traditional Chinese cuisine, with a huge variety of chicken, beef and pork entrees. Peking duck is available, plus a dozen vegetable dishes. Chef's specials include popcorn shrimp, Hunan scallops and sesame chicken.

Mexican Eatery

Two blocks from Laurel Street, Barrio Star (isabelscantina.com/barrio-star.php) is a bustling restaurant headed by chef Isabel Cruz, where Mexican soul food is on the menu. Rise early for brunch and feast on pancakes, breakfast burritos, tamales and scrambles. The lunch and dinner menu features Mexican sandwiches, tacos made from homemade tortillas, plus chicken and steak entrees. The menu also provides vegetarian options. Stay for a drink -- this place has over 35 tequila selections. Happy hour is from Monday through Saturday, with drink and appetizer specials.
